James H. Turner, Delta Air Lines inspection crew chief, yesterday was credited with saving the life of an Army private who was knocked out by lightning at the Atlanta Municipal airport during Thursday night's storm. Army officials said a citation will be sought for Turner.

Admiral Nimitz Slightly Injured In Plane Crash

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(AP)—Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander of the United States Pacific fleet, was injured recently in a west coast airplane crash in which a Naval Reserve pilot lost his life.

The accident, which occurred when the plane was landing at an airfield at an unidentified port, was announced today by the Navy Department in a statement emphasizing that the foremost naval officer in the Pacific area had "escaped serious injury."

The flyer who was killed was the copilot, Lieutenant Thomas Morton Rose, 29, of Oakland, Cal., a veteran naval aviator and former employee of Transcontinental & Western Airlines.

Nimitz, whose headquarters are in Hawaii, was on the continent for a conference with Admiral Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of the United States fleet, who inspected west coast naval establishments. King, who has returned to Washington, presented Nimitz with a Distinguished Service Medal and a citation praising particularly his direction of the Pacific fleet in the victorious Coral Sea and Midway battles.

As Pacific commander, the admiral said, Nimitz "exercised sound judgment and decision in his employment and disposition of units of the Pacific fleet during the period immediately following our entry into the war with Japan."

"His conduct of the operations of the Pacific fleet, resulting in successful actions against the enemy in the Coral Sea in May, 1942, and off Midway Island in June, 1942, was characterized by unfailing judgment and sound decision, coupled with skill and vigor. His exercise of command on all occasions left nothing to be desired."

No details of the crash in which Nimitz was injured were revealed by the Navy, nor was the cause made known. The admiral was the first high-ranking Navy officer reported to have been endangered by an air accident since the war started. Several Army Air Force officers have been lost in the course of aerial action.

With a U. S. Sub . . . In Jap Waters!

What is it like to direct the operations of an American submarine assigned to attack Japanese shipping in enemy waters?

The experiences of one commander, who was recently awarded the Navy Cross, and who requested that his name not be published—are told in a special article written exclusively for The Constitution. He tells how his undersea craft sank a Japanese merchantman, escaped depth charge attacks and scored a hit on an enemy submarine.

NAZIS SMASH INTO ROSSOSH; BATTLE FLARES AGAIN IN EGYPT

Fierce Fighting Reported West Of El Alamein

CAIRO, July 10.—(AP)—Fierce fighting broke out today between British and Axis desert forces on the Mediterranean rim west of El Alamein in a renewal of the battle for Egypt which had been bogged down in an uneasy lull for more than a week.

The new fighting erupted after RAF and American planes were reported to have destroyed or disabled 400 to 500 Axis vehicles out of a concentration of 2,000 shuttling forward to replenish Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's thrust toward Alexandria, 70 miles from the front.

The fighting ended a deadlock of several days during which both exhausted armies dug in under severe sandstorms and awaited supplies and reinforcements.

Trend Not Indicated.

Front dispatches gave no hint of the trend of the great struggle, but did say that the Axis apparently had not made any additional gains eastward.

Rommel's German-Italian legions already had been compelled to withdraw part of his curved-back right wing northward toward the sea before today's fighting was resumed.

Huge four-motored bombers of the United States Air Force were reported attacking enemy shipping in the seaplanes while the RAF concentrated on Axis land lines.

Besides the 400 to 500 vehicles caught in one huge camp the RAF was said to have destroyed 55 other trucks.

The American fliers, using Consolidated (Liberator) bombers, attacked shipping in the Mediterranean in daylight yesterday. The results were not announced.

Nazis Moving Supplies. It was certain that the Germans were moving supplies and reinforcements to their army threatening Alexandria, 70 miles to the east, because for the second time in a week the British told of attacks on Mediterranean convoys.

A British submarine sank two ships of a sea train bound for Libya, an admiralty announcement said. It was probable that the Liberators (Consolidated) of the United States Army Air Corps assaulted the survivors of the same convoy.

(The British announced that 24 Axis planes had been destroyed over Malta during the 24 hours ended last night. The same number was claimed Tuesday. Heavy Axis air attacks on Malta in the past have coincided with the movements of convoys across the Mediterranean.)

On land, the Germans withdrew part of their already curved-back right wing northward, closer to the sea.

Of the renewed American participation in the attacks on the Axis overseas supply line, the British communique said:

"United States Army heavy bombers operating over the Mediterranean shot down two enemy fighters which attempted to intercept."

It was learned that the United States Air Force was intercepted no fewer than three times by German fighters and that the two shot down into the sea were Messerschmitt 109s.

Fund Campaign Reaches Total Of $163,000

Volunteer workers in the general canvass, business and initial gifts divisions of the United War Work Fund drive, yesterday made their first report at a luncheon meeting at the Athletic Club.

Tabulation showed a total of more than $163,000 pledged in the three-county drive which will end July 17. Quota is $354,000.

Gifts reported by division chairmen were as follows: Initial gifts, $75,390; business, $14,643; general canvass, $11,995. These were added to the already reported $61,100 from the employees' division. No total is yet recorded from the county division.

Second report meetings will be held next Monday and Tuesday. Employees' division will meet at 12:30 o'clock at the Athletic Club on Monday and other divisions will gather at the same hour on Tuesday.

Atlanta Paid Visit By General Drum

Lieutenant General Hugh A. Drum, commander of the First Army of the United States and head of the Eastern Defense Command, was in Atlanta yesterday on what was termed a "routine inspection tour," but the general wouldn't talk because he was in a hurry and those with whom he conferred were silent.

Lieutenant Colonel G. F. Hawkins, the general's aide, said the general was returning from Florida and had stopped off in Atlanta to see Major General William Bryden, commanding general of the Fourth Corps Area, and to hold a conference with Charles H. Murchison, regional director for the Office of Civilian Defense.

The general is returning to New York today.

U. S. Bombers Sent Year-Around Italians Into Frenzy

By LARRY ALLEN.

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, June 29.—(Delayed)—(AP)—United States bombers struck so savagely at the Italian battle fleet two weeks ago that Mussolini's armada became "a fantastic circus of wildly careening ships" trying to escape, a British submarine commander who witnessed the attack said today.

Lieutenant Stephen L. Maydon told the story upon bringing his undersea raider to its base after sinking a heavy cruiser and torpedoing a battleship of the 35,000-ton Littorio class, seriously damaging it.

The cautious Italian fleet—or what the British have left of it—made one of its rare excursions against the convoy bound for Malta June 15.

Maydon said he sighted the Italian battle fleet at dawn and was closing in when the huge, four-motored American bombers and the RAF loosed their first explosives.

Submarine In Center. "One of the greatest scenes of confusion followed the first bombing attack," the 28-year-old skipper said. "My submarine was in the center of a fantastic circus of wildly careening capital ships, cruisers and destroyers, none of which kept on course long enough to allow us to fire torpedoes. The urge to surface and use our guns was terrific."

"Bomb flashes seemed to punctuate the movements of the fleet. Red and yellow tracers and black bursts of heavier antiaircraft fire from the Italian battle fleet streaked and blotched the sky in all directions.

"At one period there was not a quadrant of the compass that was not occupied by ships weaving continually to and fro. I gaped through the periscope in utter amazement at the fleet dashing around in mad circles.

35 Bomb Hits. The American planes were credited with scoring 35 bomb hits on the two Italian battleships. The British announced after the battle that an Italian cruiser, carrying 8-inch guns, two destroyers and a

Use of Peach Cream Urged

Recommending that the three standard ice cream flavors—vanilla, chocolate and strawberry—be changed to substitute peach for chocolate, Fred A. Scott, regional head of WPB's food division yesterday launched a move to make full use of the peach crop on a year-round basis.

Supplies of chocolate sirups used in making ice cream, flavoring sodas, and coating soda fountain goodies are running low, he revealed, and the chocolate-coated ice cream bars may soon rank with new cars and radios as casualties of war.

Coming from Central and South America, chocolate is shipped through the submarine-infested Gulf of Mexico.

Save Sugar. Substitution of peach for chocolate flavoring would be a boon to ice cream makers, Scott pointed out, because it would save sugar. Peaches contain six to 10 per cent sugar while chocolate contains none.

Peach always has been a popular flavor for ice cream, and the 1942 fruit crop, estimated at approximately 8,600,000 bushels for this region, is large. Peaches for making ice cream in all seasons may be made available through the quick-freeze process which preserves the fresh flavor indefinitely.

Preserve by Freezing. Quick-freeze methods are being used to process more of the peach crop this year, according to the WPB. Already a dozen or more process units have been set up in the southeast, and it is expected that close to a million pounds of peaches will be frozen in 1942, against some 5,000 pounds handled by this method last season.

WPB food specialists estimate the percentage of 1941 crop losses resulting from lack of preserving facilities will be greatly decreased this year through quick-freezing methods. As only first quality fruit can be used, a fair price level will be maintained for growers.

Main Russian Rail Line Into South Is Cut

MOSCOW, Saturday, July 11.—(AP)—German troops have driven into Rossosh, 150 miles east of the industrial city of Kharkov, and cut the main railway linking the central and southern Red armies.

A communique early today announced the Russian withdrawal from Rossosh before a German wedge thrust parallel to the steel arm now plucking at Voronezh, 100 miles to the north.

"For two days our men have conducted fierce fighting in the vicinity of Rossosh," the communique announced in a brief description of the heavy fighting in that area. "The enemy hurled into battle large numbers of tanks and motorized infantry. Under the pressure of enemy attacks our units retreated to new defense positions."

Rossosh itself is 20 miles short of the Don river which already had been crossed by the Germans striking at Voronezh, but it also is a point on the Moscow-Rostov railway.

Halfway Across Russia.

The Russians still were fighting fiercely "west of Voronezh," the communique said, but by evacuating Rossosh the Red army acknowledged that the Nazis in their second year of war stood halfway across European Russia to the Ural mountains from the old Polish demarcation line. Moreover, the Nazis were some 70 miles east of a line drawn directly south of Moscow, and had virtually cleared the last Russian armed forces from the fertile farm lands of the Ukraine.

The Russians also disclosed increased enemy action nearer Rostov, southern gateway to the Caucasus. The communique reported the Germans had gone on the offensive in the locality of Lisichansk, on the Donets river about 140 miles northwest of Rostov.

The Russians also said fighting continued in the neighborhood of Kaniyevskaya.

Two Long Arms.

Kaniyevskaya is just south of Rossosh and the Russian dispatches indicated the center of the fighting in the Rossosh area now was in that locality. It was the first time Kaniyevskaya has been mentioned in the Russian reports.

The two long steel arms of the enemy were reaching out to envelop a 100-mile stretch of the central waterway and its vital adjacent railway which links Moscow and the central armies with the rich Caucasus and the Red forces in the south.

The German strategy was clearly aimed at wrapping the Red army forces west of the sluggish Don in a great sac, and to drive on to the Volga isolating the entire Caucasus.

Marshal Semyon Timoshenko, realizing the peril, was reported counterattacking vigorously on the German flanks. He was pictured as determined to sell the rich earth and its industrial establishments only at the most exacting price in German lives and material.

The situation admittedly was serious. Red Star, the official army newspaper, called for a stand to the death and said the conditions near Voronezh were growing "more complicated" and near Rossosh "very difficult." Rossosh is but 235 miles from industrial Stalingrad, a key to the Caucasus.

'Tobe' Daniel Quits Public Welfare Post

Talmadge Stalwart Since '26 Resents Linder Deal.

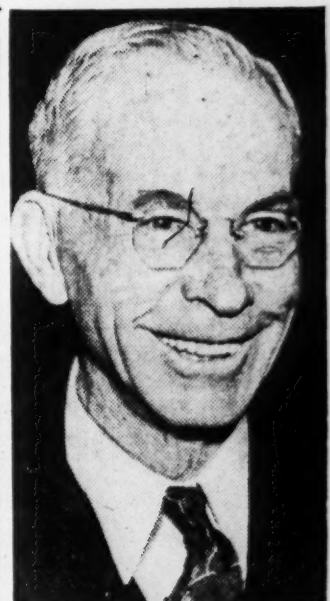

By LAMAR Q. BALL. Another blast at Talmadge leadership came yesterday with the resignation from the inner circle of J. B. "Tobe" Daniel, of LaGrange, a Talmadge stalwart since 1926.

In a brief letter received by the Governor yesterday, Daniel announced his resignation as a member of the State Board of Public Welfare.

The letter was mailed Thursday at LaGrange, but the Governor, relapsing into his grim-lipped show of the miseries, refused to acknowledge he had heard from his old supporter, Daniel.

Daniel, one of the original Tom Watson legion, has been a power in Georgia politics for years.

Davis Promises All the News

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(AP)—Elmer Davis, the director of the new Office of War Information, promised the public today it would be given all the news of the war except information of value to the enemy.

The Army and Navy, he said, remain the judges of what would constitute data of help to the Axis, but he said the rulings of the services on such points could be appealed to the President. In most cases, however, he thought an agreement could be reached without burdening the chief executive with such problems.

As far as he could observe in his few days in Washington, Davis said, the Navy has been "telling the truth adequately" about the sinking of merchant ships in the Atlantic. In no event, he asserted emphatically, would bad news be withheld "just because it is bad news."

It is intended, he stressed repeatedly, not to act in any way as a censor, but, on the contrary to supply the public with more news than hitherto. The Army and Navy will continue to issue their communiques as in the past, but after discussing their contents with him. Other departments with information to release pertaining purely to their own individual functions, and not importantly connected with the war, will issue their own statements as usual.

Reporters were advised to go directly to their usual news sources for information and were told that no clearance by Davis' office was required for news so obtained.

Davis announced the appointment of Gardner Cowles Jr., as assistant director of war information, in charge of domestic operations of the office. Cowles is president of the Des Moines Register and Tribune, president of Look magazine and vice president of the Minneapolis Star-Journal and the Iowa Broadcasting Company.

Spy Trial Secrecy Irks Elmer Davis

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(AP)—Dissatisfaction with the profound secrecy in which a military commission is trying the eight alleged Nazi saboteurs who landed in America from U-boats was expressed today by Elmer Davis, the director of war information.

At the same time, Representative Monroney, Democrat, Oklahoma, said in a statement the procedure was a violation of the democratic principle for which America is fighting, and was "not satisfactory to the American people."

From the trial itself, there was little news. A statement issued at the close of the day said: "The commission opened the third day's proceedings at 10:27 a. m."

"Before the proceedings opened, the commission permitted the United States Army Signal Corps to make photographs and silent motion pictures of the trial scene."

"Most of the day was taken up by the testimony of an FBI agent and by the reading of documents. Counsel for both sides stated to the commission the great volume of evidence to be introduced was expected to prolong the trial."

"The commission will sit on Saturday."

This was an intimation the trial would run into next week, although earlier Attorney General Biddle had expressed the view it could be finished tomorrow. It was understood the commission would not sit on Sunday.

Davis was asked about the saboteur trial at a press conference called for an explanation of the organization and methods of the Office of War Information. The public, he said, would "feel better" if it could get more news from the court room.

An arrangement was entered into, under which Major General Frank R. McCoy, head of the commission, would issue periodic statements of the present arrangement was unsatisfactory to both himself and to the Army, but was the best that could be devised under the circumstances.

Russia Denies Value of War Torpedoing of Swedish Ships At 45 Billions

'Nothing To Do' With Incidents, News Agency Tass Declares.

MOSCOW, July 10.—(AP)—Soviet submarines have had "nothing to do" with recent attacks by submarines against Swedish vessels in Swedish territorial waters, an authorized statement distributed by Tass, official Soviet news agency, declared tonight.

The statement carried by Tass follows:

"The German information bureau and the Swedish newspapers Afstundningen, Svenska Dagbladet, and others published reports alleging that on June 22 Soviet submarines torpedoed a Swedish territorial waters a Swedish steamer, the Ada Gorthon, and on July 1 directed a torpedo at the steamer Gakon."

"According to the Swedish news agency report, on July 6 an attempt was made to torpedo a caravan of Swedish ships escorted by warships."

"Tass is authorized to state that Soviet submarines had nothing to do with all these incidents which have lately taken place in Swedish territorial waters."

The Swedish steamer Margareta, 1,272 tons, of Stockholm, was the latest vessel sent down by a submarine. She was sunk Thursday in the Arkosund, near the city of Norrkoping, with 14 men missing. The Swedish report did not announce the identity of the submarine.

On June 22, residents of the Swedish island of Oland, off the east coast of Sweden, watched what they identified as a Russian submarine torpedo and sink the 3,905-ton Ada Gorthon. Swedish reports on that same day said observers at various places have sighted Russian submarines.

50 Complete Eight-Week Study In Bell Bomber Plant Work

Grown men who work all night to go to school in the daytime are a product of all-out warfare.

So are men who give up $200 and $300-a-month jobs, and women who leave their comfortable homes to stand over a riveting machine 40 hours a week, instead of a hot stove!

Such instances are not exceptional these days at Fulton County Aircraft Construction school, at 165 Central avenue, where the first class of trainees in Bell bomber work was graduated yesterday afternoon.

Among the 50 men who had completed their eight-week course in assembling and construction were such examples of practical patriotism. All, of course, are primarily motivated by the desire to do their bit for Uncle Sam. Some are looking for new careers and new money. But an unusually large number are actually deserting well-paid positions and security for the sheer satisfaction of becoming "the man behind the man behind the gun."

No Jobs for While. Despite the application of the last two months none of the current crop of students or graduates can hope to be employed locally for many months to come.

Trained in fabrication, the forming of aluminum, riveting and assembly-line methods, some will apply for positions with the Vultee Aircraft Company in Nashville; Glenn L. Martin in Baltimore; United Air Lines in Dallas; or other factories located in St. Louis, Miami and throughout the eastern states.

One member of this graduating class, Logan Williamson, has been notified by the Bell Company of his appointment to an immediate, $250-a-month position as a production manager.

'Tobe' Daniels Resigns

Hamilton as state treasurer, he installed "Tobe" Daniels in that office and Daniel remained there until former Governor E. D. Rivers entered office in 1936.

"Knocked Me Cold." Daniel offered himself as a candidate for Georgia Public Service commissioner in 1934. His opponent, Walter McDonald, was elected by county unit vote, although Daniel rolled up a larger popular vote.

In his letter to the Governor, Daniel said: "The treatment accorded Tom Linder has knocked me cold. Dick Russell has misrepresented Georgia too long already."

With Daniel's refusal to move along with the present politics of the Talmadge organization, reports came yesterday of another middle Georgia Talmadge leader who is ready to surrender his seat among the Governor's favorites.

This man said late yesterday: "I want to give the Governor a chance to explain himself over the radio (last night). I'll very probably have a statement to make after I hear him. Get in touch with me Saturday."

One of a Series. This second defection, reported to be one of the most serious, is said to be but one of a series to be expected within the next few weeks.

In an effort to stem the desertion among his old leaders, Governor Talmadge yesterday issued copies of a long letter from Thomas J. Shackelford, of Athens, an old Talmadge stalwart who was brushed aside so an appointment in Clarke county could be given to a friend of United States Senator Dick Russell.

The Governor was obviously worried but he placed unlimited hopes in the success of the Shackelford letter which expressed admiration of him and his policies, in spite of the backstabbing he had handed the 70-year-old Clarke county attorney.

Committee Crimps Henderson

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(AP)—The Senate Appropriations Committee recommended a $120,000,000 operating fund for the Office of Price Administration today, but in raising the house-approved total $45,000,000 wrote in sharp restrictions on the use of the money.

First of all, it directed that none of the money be used for subsidies. (Price Administrator Leon Henderson has urged that provision be made for subsidies to producers who, because of higher costs, cannot operate under present price ceilings.)

It also stipulated that: None of the appropriation could be used to enforce any price ceiling on commodities manufactured in whole or in part from agricultural products, until the secretary of agriculture had determined that the price so established would reflect to the producer of the raw material a return not less than any of the following: 110 per cent of parity; the market price last October 1; the market price last December 15, or the average price from 1919 to 1929.

None of the OPA fund could be used to enforce a regional increase in the price ceiling of any commodity on the theory that the rise was made necessary by increased transportation costs, unless in fact the cost of transportation had risen.

Still another amendment requires Senate confirmation of OPA employees receiving more than $4,500 a year. Some legislators have complained that Henderson has made appointments to regional OPA posts without consulting them—in some cases giving jobs to their political foes.

Industries' Price Increase Opposed

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(AP)—Price Administrator Leon Henderson has informed Congress he has established a policy of disapproving price increases asked by industries because of pay raises granted employees subsequent to April 27.

The April 27 date was chosen, Henderson told a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee in an executive session, because President

Roosevelt sent to Congress on that date his "cost of living" message which called for the exercise of several measures against inflation, including stabilization of wages.

Disclosing that the Office of Price Administration had been working for several months on a formula for ceilings on the prices for military combat articles, Henderson said these price maxima would take into account overhead rates and pay scales as they were in effect before April 27.

Henderson testified that he had "served notice on the Army and Navy and others" that he intended to hold government agencies to a section of the price control act which directed them to work with him toward "a stabilization of prices, fair and equitable wages, and the cost of production."

Georgia Bond Sale $6,000,000 in June

Georgia is doing pretty well in the sale of war bonds, Marion Allen, state administrator, announced yesterday, pointing out that only Alabama among states of comparable size made a better record of sales for the month of June.

Five states, among them Alabama, reached the quotas set for them by the Treasury Department last month, with Iowa making the best showing of them all. Hawaii and Alaska both exceeded their quotas and the Canal Zone, which had no quota, recorded $50,000 in sales.

Georgia sold more than $6,000,000 in bonds last month, Allen announced.

Student Groups At University Indorse Arnall

Campus Newspaper Openly Declares Anti-Talmadge Campaign.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. ATHENS, Ga., July 10.—Nearly every organization on the University of Georgia campus indorsed Ellis Arnall for Governor when the Red and Black, student newspaper, openly declared an anti-Talmadge campaign.

A regular edition of the Red and Black appearing on the campus this afternoon declared in editorial columns that, "dishonest politics have dominated Georgia. Talmadge is the symbol. The best candidate for Governor of Georgia is Ellis Arnall. He more closely approaches the aims of democracy than the other candidate." This editorial was written by Beryl Sellers, editor of the student weekly.

Copies of the Red and Black will be mailed to every newspaper in Georgia.

Student leaders began making plans this morning for a huge Arnall rally in Athens or some other Georgia city, to be held during the first week of August, it was announced by the Student Political League.

Jimmie Moore, president of the law school student body, will address a gathering in Gainesville the first of next week.

Cutcliffe Arrested On Assault Charge

Walter Cutcliffe, one-time big shot lottery king, must appear in police court July 15 and answer to a charge of disorderly conduct and assault and battery.

Cutcliffe was arrested yesterday and released after posting bond of $200. The arrest was made on complaint of R. J. Gardner, who claimed that Cutcliffe attacked him Thursday when he went to Cutcliffe's office to pay a note.

Gardner told Detectives E. I. Hilderbrand and H. E. Burdette that he suffered a black eye, and had several teeth knocked loose.

Senator Lodge Enters Race for Second Term

BOSTON, July 10.—(AP)—United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., Republican, Massachusetts, today formally entered the race for a second term.

Nomination papers, containing 2,026 signatures, were filed by his secretary, Maxwell M. Rabb. There were no indications that Lodge would be opposed for the Republican nomination.

Lodge is a major in the Army and requested active service, but Secretary of War Stimson ordered him placed on the inactive list to enable him to serve in the senate. He recently completed a military mission to the Near East.

Matron Indicted On Four Counts Of Assault, Battery

Accused of having assaulted, beat, struck and wounded four girls residing at the Community Home for Girls at 318 Cooper street, Mrs. Elizabeth Armstrong, matron there for the past seven years, yesterday was indicted on four counts of assault and battery by the Fulton county grand jury.

Pipe Line Probe Is Promised By Talmadge

Plot Charged in Speech Also Attacking News- paper Writers.

An investigation of what he terms the "pipe line scandal," which he charges is a plot to raise a slush fund for the oil companies, was promised by Governor Talmadge last night in a radio speech over WSB.

The Governor charged that Georgia, where the pipe line has openings, supplies gasoline and oil to near-by Alabama, where the price per gallon is two and a half cents less.

"After this investigation is over," said the Governor, "it is going to be as rotten as the Teapot Dome scandal a few years ago in Washington during the Harding administration."

The Governor attacked newspapermen who were on the pay roll of the former Rivers regime.

McGill Criticized.

Of Ralph McGill, executive editor of The Constitution, he said: "Ralph McGill, the loud writer in the substitute Atlanta Constitution, who has so many dreams and visions, drew $100 per month from the state as chairman of the State Athletic Board. While he was drawing this $100 per month from the state, he was touring Europe on the Rosenwald fund, and although he was out of the state and the country, he did not get a leave of absence, but drew his salary from the state of Georgia, at the same time that he was accepting this money from the Rosenwald fund." At that time McGill was sports editor of The Constitution.

Of Gladstone Williams, Washington correspondent of The Constitution, the Governor said: "Gladstone Williams, of Washington, D. C., not even in Georgia at the time, received a monthly check of $100, not to do one lick of work for the state, but to write editorials bragging on the Rivers-Arnall administration."

Just One Platform.

The Governor mentioned a few other Georgia newspapermen, and said: "This is the same crowd that says the county unit system is bad. This is the same crowd that wants to further wreck and plunder our State Treasury."

Of his platform, the Governor said: "There can be no other platform except to conserve our resources and keep down the taxes of this state. Make every effort possible to sacrifice and win this war. Keep and preserve Georgia for our boys and girls who come home after the war to have a place to start again with a fair chance in life."

Of his "pipe line scandal," the Governor quoted telegrams from the Georgia congressional delegation pledging its effort to give "full consideration to the investigation the Governor suggests." The promise came from Congressman Carl Vinson.

Campaign Song Sung.

The Governor's address was delivered in the Pompeian Room of the Biltmore hotel, crowded with Talmadge employees and their friends. The Governor's campaign song was sung in a musical program before the broadcast, but was not permitted on the airwaves by radio regulations.

In his windup, the Governor said of the gas "scandal": "Here's a memorandum furnished by the transportation companies relative to testimony given before the senate investigation and other committees:

"It is a matter of public information and testimony has been given before senate investigation and other committees that the retail price on gasoline in Atlanta and vicinity is based upon the all-rail freight rate from Shreveport, Louisiana.

"The all-rail freight rate from Shreveport to Atlanta is 38 cents per hundred, or the equivalent of 2.49 cents per gallon—just a little less than the 2½ cents per gallon increase granted recently, and which really pays the entire all-rail freight rate, although the statement has been made that the increase was granted to take care of increased transportation cost."

More Than Paid.

"This 2½-cent hike in gasoline more than paid for the transportation of the gasoline to Georgia from the oil wells of the west."

"My countrymen, the three terms that I have served as your Governor, do they attack any of my official actions? Do they attack me for paying the debts of the state?"

"Do they attack me for paying the teachers as I promised them, on the date I promised?"

"Did they attack me in the former administration of mine for lowering the ad valorem tax 40 per cent?"

"Do they attack my success in getting the price of gas, power and transportation rates and telephone rates lowered? No."

Meet the Emergency.

"Do they attack me for my strong support of the Constitution of the state of Georgia, guaranteeing that our schools for the whites and Negroes shall forever remain separate? No."

"But, like the cuttlefish, they put out a slime with their slush fund to deceive you because I won't pay their agents to muddy the waters and fool the good people of Georgia."

"Now is the time for all of us to go to the bat and live as close as we can. No additional taxes. We have all that we can bear."

"Make every preparation to meet the emergency and bring about an honorable victory for America."

He closed, as usual, with a poem.

5 More Ships Lost by Allies In West Atlantic

Total Sinkings Since Pearl Harbor Rise to 354 Vessels.

By The Associated Press.

The deaths of 16 seamen aboard four merchant vessels torpedoed by Axis submarines in the western Atlantic and the rescue of 230 others were disclosed yesterday in the Navy's announcements of the sinkings.

With the sinking of a fifth ship, a Honduran merchant vessel, being reported by the Cuban navy, the unofficial Associated Press tally of Allied and neutral ship losses in the western Atlantic since Pearl Harbor swelled to 354.

The other U-boat victims were two medium-sized British ships, a small United States merchantman and a medium-sized Belgian cargo ship. No members of the crew of the Honduran ship, shelled off the north coast of Cuba, were lost.

Two torpedoes, and shells from the submarine's large deck gun, blasted one of the British merchantmen to the bottom of the south Atlantic June 1, killing three crewmen on duty in the engine room. Among the vessel's 78 survivors was Quartermaster B. G. Cook, of London, who described the raider as being the largest submarine he had even seen, and "big enough to carry a plane."

The United States vessel was torpedoed May 4 off the coast of South America. Eleven of the merchantman's 29 crew members were killed when the torpedo exploded.

The explosion of another vessel plying the Caribbean placed crewmen aboard the Belgian cargo ship on the alert and accounted for the loss of but one of her 48 seamen when an Axis submarine attacked and sank her minutes later.

Meanwhile, the submarine sinking of three ships in the St. Lawrence river Sunday night was disclosed by a member of Canada's parliament, but the government gave no confirmation. K. S. Roy, Independent M. P., who reported the incident in the house of commons yesterday, said he had learned of a 14-vessel convoy was attacked by enemy U-boats off Cape Chat, and that three ships had been torpedoed and sunk. Prime Minister Mackenzie King criticized Roy's premature report, saying, "Any statement will have to be made by the (navy) minister."

Homes Offered Girls.

The stories of alleged maltreatment of girls at the home continued yesterday to bring a flood of telephone calls and letters to the police department, offering homes to the girls.

The investigation of the home grew out of statements by Jan Moreland, a Kentucky girl, who said that she had spent two and a half years at college and that she came to Atlanta to be near her fiancé at Fort McPherson. Finding herself stranded, she said she was directed to the Community Home where she was told she could stay until she found work.

According to police reports, Mrs. Armstrong, who was in charge of the home, was creating a disturbance. Miss Moreland told Patrolmen Campbell and Williams that it was not she but Mrs. Armstrong who created the disturbance by burning the arms of Myrtle Cameron and Sarah White with matches as punishment for smoking. The patrolmen then returned to the home and reported that they found the drugs under the influence of the matron or whisky.

Crowd Gathers To See Secret Dedication at Secret Location

Secret dedication services for Atlanta's Civilian Defense control center were held last night at the control center, the location of which is a military secret.

Defense officials had quietly invited 125 people, those who will be employed in the center, and high ranking defense officials, to attend the dedicatory services.

In extending the invitations, defense officials stressed the importance of secrecy, pointing out that knowledge of the location of the control center would be information of value to the enemy.

The secret plans for the meeting called for 125 seats for the guests secretly invited.

But when George M. Phillips, metropolitan director, called the secret meeting to order, he discovered that the 125 seats would not accommodate those secretly invited, for more than 200 people were attending the secret meeting at the secret location.

Yugoslavia's Command Transferred From Cairo

LONDON, July 10.—(AP)—The Yugoslav military cabinet announced today that its high command had been transferred back from Cairo to Yugoslavia and that the field commander of the 200,000 to 300,000 fighting patriots, General Draja Mihailovic, had been named chief of staff. He already is minister of war.

"It is a sign that the zero hour is approaching and that the high command is preparing the people of Yugoslavia to rise against the common enemy," the cabinet announcement said. The shift was ordered by King Peter, who is in Canada on a tour.

Surtax Rates Hitler Slipping, On Income Tax Crash Coming, Returns Upped Says Lochner

House Group Approves 1 Per Cent Hike Above Previous Plan.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(AP)—The House Ways and Means Committee decided tonight to increase surtax rates on individual income tax returns by 1 per cent above the previous agreement providing for levies ranging from 12 to 81 per cent.

At the same time, the committee decided that the present individual exemptions of $1,500 for married persons and $750 for single persons should apply to military and Naval personnel. The committee previously had decided to reduce the exemptions for all to $1,200 and $500.

$310,000,000 Yield.

Representative Cooper, Democrat, Tennessee, said the increased exemptions for military and Naval personnel would reduce the total revenue yield of the new tax bill by about $85,000,000, but that the increase in surtaxes would add about $310,000,000.

During the day, the committee decided to leave in the pending $5,800,000,000 bill a 5 per cent levy on freight and express charges, despite opposition from Price Administrator Leon Henderson and the Treasury.

Henderson, with Treasury support, had objected that such a tax would increase pressure for an upward boost in price ceilings. It is estimated to produce $292,000,000.

The committee members agreed, however, that coal should be exempted from the percentage tax and a flat levy of 5 cents a ton should be imposed.

Many Oppose Levy.

While the committee worked on the bill, a leading congressional advocate of a general retail sales tax said a survey of sentiment indicated there was no chance of writing that kind of a levy into the bill on the house floor. He was Representative Robertson, Democrat, Virginia, who sent a questionnaire to all members asking whether they would like to vote on a 5 per cent retail sales tax. He said he had not heard from about half of the members but more than a majority of the replies were against such a levy.

The members rejected during the day an attempt by Representative Boehne, Democrat, Indiana, to put into the bill a provision establishing a tax penalty for married persons who decided not to file joint individual income tax returns. The vote was reported to have been 12 to 11.

The committee several weeks ago adopted a provision requiring mandatory joint returns, 13 to 10, then reversed itself and discarded that plan by a vote of 16 to 9.

Dutch, Reds Establish Diplomatic Relations

LONDON, July 10.—(AP)—An agreement establishing diplomatic relations between Soviet Russia and the Netherlands was signed at the Soviet embassy today by Russian Ambassador Ivan M. Maisky and Baron Michiels Van Verdun, acting foreign minister of the Netherlands government here.

The agreement, in effect immediately and not requiring ratification, provided for an exchange of ministers.

The Netherlands had not re-established diplomatic relations with Russia after the Soviet revolution.

Citywide Test Is Planned for Air Raid Sirens

Spotters Will Take Van- tage Points To Detect Dead Spots.

The first citywide test of Atlanta's newly installed 225 air raid sirens will take place at noon Wednesday, George M. Phillips, director of the metropolitan district civilian defense announced yesterday. The test will be to discover any dead spots and to gauge the efficiency of the system.

The sirens were installed at an overall cost of approximately $11,000, and Dewey L. Johnson, city superintendent of electrical affairs in charge of air raid signals, directed the work.

Spotters will be stationed at vantage points throughout the city to make sure the alarm is heard in all directions. If dead spots are discovered, measures to correct the defects will be taken, Phillips said.

They are Captain Fortune A. Dugan, 33, of New Orleans, pilot; Captain Ralph E. Adams, 31, of Emory, Texas, co-pilot; Radio Officer James R. Fraser, 26, and Flight Engineer Arthur F. Ryan, 27, of Toronto.

Dugan and his crew usually deliver American-built bombers to Berlin for 17 years, said tonight they took government-sponsored passengers and urgently needed war materials to Britain and brought ferry crews back to Canada.

'Banner Year' In Sight for Crops And Livestock

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(AP)—The Agriculture Department, stating that growing conditions have rarely been better at this season of the year for the country as a whole, said today a "banner year" for the production of crops and livestock for United Nations war needs appeared to be in the making.

Prospects were said to point to a record production of such vital vegetable oil crops as soybeans, peanuts and flaxseed, foreign supplies of which have been cut off by the war, and of sugar beets, barley, dry edible beans, rice and canning vegetables.

Likewise, large supplies of the bread and feed grains also were indicated.

The department said that if present prospects are borne out at harvest time, this year's acreage of crops would be the largest since 1932 and the total production would be 3 per cent greater than last year and 14 per cent greater than the 1923-32 average—the period prior to inauguration of AAA crop control programs.

Wheat production was estimated at 904,288,000 bushels, which would be a big crop although the average grown was the smallest since 1917. The crop totaled 945,937,000 bushels last year and 747,507,000 bushels for the 10-year (1930-39) average. The 1942 crop estimate included 675,482,000 bushels of winter wheat, 32,321,000 bushels of durum and 196,285,000 bushels of other spring wheat.

The corn crop was forecast at 2,627,823,000 bushels. This was slightly below last year's crop of 2,672,541,000 bushels but far above the 10-year average of 2,307,452,000 bushels. The corn acreage was about 4 per cent greater than that harvested last year.

The prospective production of wheat was estimated at 66,984,000 bushels on the basis of July 1 condition.

This, the Agriculture Department said, would be 10 per cent below last year's bumper crop.

The report put indicated production in the 10 early southern states at 21,066,000 bushels against 24,309,000 last year. Georgia's indicated 1942 production was listed at 6,612,000 bushels compared with 7,100,000 last year.

Legion Post Sees Burning Of Mortgage

Fire Wipes Out Loan on Clubhouse Off Pied- mont Avenue.

Post No. 1, American Legion, last night watched a $35,000 fire with something akin to glee.

Up in smoke went the mortgage on the clubhouse off Piedmont avenue at the park.

Members of the post and their guests previously had been fortified for the occasion at a barbecue given by the post and attended by more than 500 persons.

Later, Otis L. Hathcock was installed as commander, succeeding Gladstone Pitt.

Post No. 1, largest in the state, was organized in February, 1920, with Eugene Oberdorfer as first commander.

The post organized one of the first units of the State Guard after National Guard units had been called into federal service and is now supplying many of the auxiliary policemen for the downtown area.

ATLANTA, GA., JULY 11, 1942.

Gas Problem

Weeks ago, before any state politico thought of trying to make political capital of it, Georgia's two senators were busy objecting to the rationing of gas in the eastern seaboard states while the rest of the nation went unrationed.

Weeks ago The Atlanta Constitution protested, and followed with other protests, the discrimination against the southern states along the coast. The Constitution argued that a pound of rubber saved in Georgia was worth no more and no less than one saved in Utah or Arizona or any other state where there is no rationing. The fight has just begun and likely will be won. When it is won, Georgia may thank her senators and those congressmen who led the fight.

Sectional discrimination was bad enough in so far as respect for the regulation was concerned. When it was learned that many members of congress were receiving cards allowing them to have unlimited supplies of gasoline, public indignation was increased.

The latest ruling, that politicians may have unlimited supplies with which to drive about their communities and solicit votes, will further break down respect for the regulation for all the activities of government agencies having to do with regulating consumer goods.

The public, with a war being fought, is not too friendly with politicians anyhow. They do not think extra gas is necessary. The politicians have had too much gas all along and the average person thinks that too much political gas is one reason for the trouble this country has had.

On top of this the government fails to explain that the increase in price does not go to the gas companies, but to transportation companies, largely railroads. It is not a slush fund for the gas companies.

The price isn't justified nor is rationing justified as long as it is discriminatory against one section of the country. Americans will take it pleasantly as long as they believe they are being treated the same as all other Americans.

It would be difficult to find a problem more stupidly handled than the gasoline problem.

And to keep adding stupidity on top of stupidity seems unreasonable.

If gas must be saved, let all Americans help save it. Not just some of them.

—WE WIN—OR LOSE—TOGETHER—

It is years since mention was made of the "open door" in China. Anyway, the Japs now infiltrate through transoms.

—WE WIN—OR LOSE—TOGETHER—

What About the Aleutians?

It might appear at first glance that the Japs are getting the worst of it in the Aleutian Islands area. Nine warships, including transports, have been sunk or damaged, according to our Navy Department, and the Japs have been able to make little headway since landing on the fog-covered, rocky slopes of Attu. Since no large-scale, concerted drives are being made by the Japs on the Aleutians, what is the purpose of these local exploits?

Ostensibly the Japs want bases on the outer fringes of the Aleutians as a defensive measure, to prevent the bombing of Tokyo via Dutch Harbor and Kiska. But experience should teach us that Japanese are fighting an offensive, not a defensive, war. Military experts tell us the Aleutians are too far from Japan and too close to the United States and Canada for the Japs to use these islands as bases for attacks against us. If we recall, certain military experts said virtually the same thing about Singapore.

But there is another angle in the Japanese occupation of Attu. By way of Alaska, Russia is but a short distance from the United States. If we were to send supplies to a Russian Siberian army for the purpose of attacking Japan, those supplies probably would go across the northern Pacific. If Japan had even one base in this area she could menace this supply route. Weather conditions for flying are far from ideal in this area, but we cannot believe flying conditions are impossible because Russia has established hangars in the Commander group and on Big Diomed Island, far to the north in the Bering Sea.

What route the United States intends to take to attack Japan is, of course, a military secret. But look at your map. Geographically, the best route is through Alaska and the Aleutians.

We hope our military will eliminate the Japs from any part of the Aleutian group. Their presence now may seem a tiny sore spot, but it could grow to cancerous proportions.

Grand Jury Charge

A recent charge to the grand jury by Judge A. L. Etheridge deserves more than casual attention by all persons interested in government, and especially by all those eligible for future grand jury service.

In the past year there have been some indictments which did not seem justified. There was an indication they were made on the basis of vicious gossip, neighborhood feuds and desire for revenge.

As Judge Etheridge properly said:

"The finding of an indictment is a serious matter. . . . Loose statements, idle rumors, the desire to injure or to gain preferment, are not sufficient basis for indictments and are matters unworthy of our time and have no right to your official approval. . . . The innocent should be protected."

Judge Etheridge listed procedure which seems worthy of being repeated. He urged that no indictment be returned unless there is competent evidence at hand to support it. He urged the courts to attend promptly to indictments and bring them to trial; that there be prompt disposition of all appeals; that the court and all its officers move quietly but firmly to the end that justice be administered fairly.

All this is excellent advice. That part pertaining to the grand jury refusing to indict on idle rumors or loose talk is of very vital importance. The grand juries must not allow themselves to be made the dupes of a smearing campaign.

Sugar Daddies

A report by the sugar-rationing board that two husbands separated from their wives, carried away the sugar ration cards, leaves us in an undecided mood.

It is just possible the husbands, remembering many bad cups of coffee, took the sugar in search of a good cup of coffee. Many men have debated that idea, sipping away at a cup of coffee which tastes like something boiled out of a boot.

We think the sugar rationing man ought to investigate the cause of separation. If it was bad coffee, let the husbands keep the cards.

Let's Get the Big Ones!

"The one that got away. . . ."

In the past few days we have been treated to the best spy stories of the war.

The FBI and the Army have spread their nets and come up with as striking a lot of deep sea curiosities as ever did a fisherman.

Having observed the habits, if not the habits, of fisherfolk for many a generation, the non-aqueous public is well inclined to ask, "Well, what of the big one that got away?"

But, happily to say, the Army announces not only the seizure of the customary small fry, but the big one that didn't get away in the Caribbean—the big-shot Honduras businessman identified with the rare name of the "King of Belize."

Let's hope that in this deep sea contest there will be no big ones that get away. In this, there will be no throwing back of the undersized and no ban on dynamiting, seining or baiting.

Where's the gig, trot line and net? Let's go fishing.

Georgia Editors Say:

(TO AVOID POLITICS.)

(From The Elberton Star.)

It is a well-known fact that politics enters into everything that affects human life. It has entered our educational field, and as a result the youth of the state have been the sufferers.

Now comes the suggestion from Attorney General Ellis Arnall to rid our educational system of politics by making the State Board of Education and the Board of Regents constitutional bodies. The suggestion is worthy of serious consideration. Its adoption might not entirely cure the evil, but would greatly help. It would probably be better to combine the State Board of Education with the Board of Regents and by constitutional amendment make the Board of Regents the head of all education in the state. This, in fact, was the original idea in the Board of Regents plan.

As we have it, there are two heads to public education in Georgia—the State Board of Education, dealing only with the public schools, and the Board of Regents, dealing only with the University System. There is no good reason for having the two heads, when one would save time and money, and prevent cross-purpose of effort. Such a board should consist of not more than five members, and should retain the state superintendent and all necessary officials. Under such a setup the menace of politics would be reduced to a minimum.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

HITLER'S PLANS WASHINGTON, July 10.—Concerned over the growing might of the United States and the weariness of his own people of war, Hitler is now reported to have a program for bending every effort toward knocking Russia out this summer and then offer peace to the British and Americans in the fall.

The reports may or may not have any basis of truth. They may be propaganda put out by Axis sources to lull the Allied nations into lesser activity. They do, however, come from sufficient sources and have enough air of plausibility about them to warrant repetition and discussion.

On the American side of the picture, Hitler, of course, knows the scope of our preparations, the number and quality of planes we are turning out, the tanks we are building, the naval and commercial ship tonnage we are producing, and the size of the tremendous armed forces we are training. It is inconceivable that he can fail to be impressed by what we are doing.

Whatever contrary ideas he may have had on the subject before Pearl Harbor must have undergone sharp revision since then. The record of America's conversion of its huge peacetime industry to war purposes has been phenomenal—a miracle of industrial achievement. The size of our defense appropriations—approximately two hundred billion dollars—shows also the utmost determination on our part to carry through to the bitter end.

Not until next year will the full force of our gigantic effort be felt in Europe. By that time we expect to have an Army of nearly 5,000,000 men, and if we and the British haven't opened a second front before then it certainly will in 1943.

LAST CHANCE Hitler knows all of this. Consequently, it would not be illogical for him to seek any means for obtaining a peace this year. All of the experts agree that he must win the war this year or not at all. On the domestic German front, not only are Hitler's own people said to be growing weary of so many "victories" without peace, but there is a recognized danger of the 100,000,000 subjugated Europeans rising in revolt against Nazi domination.

The new Hitler plans, in lieu of his former ambitious program for world domination, are therefore reported to call for an all-out assault to knock the Russians out of the war this year and close the Mediterranean as a collateral move. This accomplished, with Europe and Africa in his hands, he would make peace approaches to the British and the United States.

The reported peace offer would be dressed up in the most inviting form. It would leave the British Empire intact and would be designed to appeal to us in two ways. First, to relieve us of the necessity of conducting a long and costly war, one that might well bankrupt the world before it is finished. And, second, to free our hands to deal with the Japanese, whom he would thus throw overboard with no more compunction of conscience than he did in scrapping the ten-year nonaggression pact with Russia.

If the British parry the peace offer, Hitler's plan is said to call for an immediate launching of the long-threatened invasion of England, hoping to knock the British out of the war also. Against us standing alone, he believes the war could be prolonged indefinitely.

RUSSIAN POSITION In presenting the offers to us he would adopt the reasonable sounding proposal sphere left to our own sphere of influence. Europe would be organized under Nazi guidance and trade agreements would be suggested in keeping with normal commercial intercourse. All of it would be sugar-coated to give popular appeals for peace, of course.

The reports go so far as to suggest that the peace proposals may come even without the final knockout blow being administered to Russia. They might be presented to Russia first if the German army is able to push the Soviets back far enough to threaten them with extinction. But the success of this part of the venture would depend on the resistance of the Russians, both diplomatically and from the military standpoint.

All of the reports may later prove to be baseless. If the Russians stand and the British hold in Egypt, there may be little left for Hitler to use as a basis for any proposal. But if his forces are successful in the east, most informed sources do believe that we may expect a peace offensive. There was nothing in the air about one being planned for last fall, but the Soviet campaign, which was to be used as a foundation for the offers, did not work out that way. The year ended with the Red army putting the Nazis on the run.

If there is anything to the reports, it is obvious that Russia remains the keystone to the program. What happens there in the months ahead will determine a large measure of the future.

PROTESTS GAS DISCRIMINATION

Editor, Constitution: Why should Georgia be discriminated against in the price of gas? Twenty-five cents per gallon is outrageous. Our sister states sell it at a much lower figure.

Is this a reprisal made against us for some of the things our Governor has done to discredit us in the eyes of our country? Auto travel has been reduced, almost trucking, but people from afar are going to do their best to avoid passing through Georgia if this is not rectified. One can understand why, with gasoline rationing the filling station owner would want to charge a higher price. But what does he get out of it? To the best of my understanding—nothing.

If this needless gasoline "price hike" stays in effect it will soon cost the people of Georgia many thousands of dollars, perhaps a million. Why should the people of Georgia have to pay the excess tank car freight for the benefit of the northeastern states, where there is a lower retail price?

This transient avoidance of Georgia will hurt many people engaged in small businesses as well as the people of Georgia themselves.

MARGARET M. WILKINS (MRS. BERNARD)

(Editor's Note: The Constitution and Georgia's two senators have been fighting this discrimination. It is wrong. The advanced price in gas, however wrong, does not go to the gas companies.)

ASKS AMERICANS TO WAKE UP!

Editor, Constitution: Americans today are being faced by two glowing headlines which seem to contradict each other. One tells of the terrific setbacks accorded Allied forces all over the face of the globe, the other, that it is inevitable that the Allies will win this war.

We, as average Americans, are optimists, and are thus inclined to accept the latter of these two proclamations. We want to, almost make ourselves feel that America, with its vast store of resources, cannot help but eventually win. By so doing, we build within ourselves a false optimism, a hope that is not based on substantiating facts. This belief also causes us to be lax when it comes to contributing our share in the war work. If the average American can feel that we cannot help but win, he cannot avoid acting, perhaps unconsciously, with the thoughts in mind that "oh well, we're going to win this war anyhow, there's no need of my going out of my way to deprive myself of things I've been using. Oh, come, I'll buy war bonds and stamps, to prove I'm a patriotic citizen, but so far as my scraping every penny, stinting myself just to buy a few stamps, that's just a lot of bosh."

And the really true citizen can rely to his actions. "Yes, brother, it's true that commentators, columnists, etc., tell us that victory is inevitable. But their statements are not based on false optimism; they are based on faith in Americans—on faith in you. They say this because they believe in you; they believe you're going to scrape every penny, cut every corner, even deny yourself, to go down and invest in America, in the life of that boy, sweetheart, husband, or friend of yours; they believe, yes, they know you're not going to throw away 166 years of beautiful freedom for a few years of personal comfort."

We must defeat any spirit of overoptimism; it is detrimental to America's future. We must make every citizen see that it is only through the training of every muscle by every American that victory can be ours.

Above all, Americans must realize that we can lose this war. When every American is gripped at the throat by the bitter realization that victory is not inevitable, but that we can very conceivably lose our sacred heritage of freedom, then, only then, will the American really begin to express by his co-operation how much their freedom really means to them.

Come on, Americans, let's wake up! Let's realize that we can lose and act under the impact of that knowledge to insure that we will win.

ERNEST O. CAMPBELL, Stephens, Ga.

SAYS GOD MUST BE RECOGNIZED

If someone were to ask me, now what do you really think about humanity and this war now going on? I'd say nothing, not a word. People speak of the second coming of Christ. Some may say "I've heard that boogie tale before." It won't do to be certain of what we do not know, viz: The future. What worries me is am I ready to meet Him? It won't last for any man or race of men to stand up and say there is no God, man has no soul and brute force rules the roost. We are only the accursed of time. Man is a man and God is God. Don't forget that. Some bravado may show us. We've heard that boogie tale before. God pities us. He knows we are only worms of the dust. Let's make ourselves feel their full agency, go their limit and in the darkest hour, when all hope is gone, God will arise with healing in His wings and let the world feel and know what these words of Christ mean. "I am the resurrection and the life."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Production Sabotage NEW YORK, July 10.—You have all heard William Green's assurances that the AFL would refrain from retarding war production and construction and strive to relevant information.

All right, here is the gist of a United Press dispatch from Rochester, N. Y., followed by other relevant information.

The Rochester item says 30 operating engineers, meaning steam-shovel men and the like, hampered construction at five war plants by refusing to report for work because of "illness." H. Orville Warner, business manager and organizer of their local union, said, however, that the "illness" was such that only a pay increase from $1.62 to $1.75 an hour would "cure" it.

Who is H. Orville Warner?

He is a unionizer who was kicked to a bloody pulp at the 1941 New York state convention of the AFL in Syracuse by Joe Fay, a dramatic actor and terrorist, with whom William Green frequently associates. Fay is an international vice president of the engineers. Last November 15 Warner wrote me that he was eager to give information about "that rich racketeer" Joe Fay, of the Operating Engineers.

"I was a member of one of his (Fay's) locals in Rochester," Warner wrote, "and business representative for four years, in which we were not allowed to have an election. We prospered and as soon as we accumulated a few hundred dollars Fay demanded certain cuts. So I was ousted, brutally beaten so badly that I required hospitalization. I was taken up in Fay's room and given the works. If you desire a statement regarding a real shake-down in this city concerning Fay and his stooges I will be glad to give it to you because I expect to be down there in New York in the very near future and try and get some details about the Redwood case."

Felony Charge Redwood was a Jersey unionizer who was shot dead and whose murder was involved with Jersey and union politics and, therefore, naturally never was solved.

On Warner's complaint Fay was indicted on a felony charge, but Warner vanished and, after a brief continuance, the indictment was dismissed on the representation of Fay's lawyers, who were numerous, distinguished and by no means cheap, that his talents were necessary in the war effort.

Thereafter the boys made a deal and Warner was returned to a job in which he now says that the "illness" of 30 malingeringers in the war effort is such that a raise of 13 cents an hour would "cure" it.

Fay previously had lugged David Dubinsky, president of the Garment Workers, and one of the few men in the AFL leadership with the honor and courage to fight racketeers, because Dubinsky had offered a resolution to kick his kind from union office. Before that on a night in December, 1938, in Albany, Brian Feehey, of New York, an official of the local of the Sand-Hogs Union was lured into a room with Fay and his mob and beaten up with bottles and fists in a wild melee that wrecked a railroad car. Fay and several others were taken to the police station, but were released when George Meany, secretary of the AFL, persuaded Feehey that the scandal would be injurious to labor, to say nothing of course, about the embarrassment to the reign of crooks and racketeers in AFL unions.

Enjoined By Courts Among those present before or during the assault on Feehey the victim named Joe Moreschi, president of the great national licensed shakedown racket known as the Common Laborers' Union, who had tried to Anschluss Feehey's union of sandhogs first by demanding the books and treasury for one of his appointees and later by trying to murder the jurisdiction of Feehey's group until there would be no jobs left for them. The New York courts have enjoined him in this. Also present was Tom McGraw, business agent of Fay's Albany local, who recently was indicted in the federal court there on a charge of exacting kickbacks from laborers employed on war projects. McGraw also was pinched for beating up Feehey but, like Fay, was released in the interest of "solidarity."

The president of Fay's union is William E. Maloney, of Chicago, a long-time social and professional intimate of Mike Carrozzo, who was Moreschi's man in Chicago and died owing the government $250,000 in income taxes. Maloney, like Carrozzo in his time, owns a racing stable and himself was indicted by Thurman Arnold on a charge of excusing ready-mix concrete from paying jobs there. His pal, Carrozzo, has a financial interest in another paving material. The indictment was dismissed on a demurrer based on the infamous doctrine of the carpenters' case as laid down by the United States Supreme Court.

In Akron, Ohio, Harry D. Jones, business agent of Fay's local there, a vice president of the Ohio Federation of Labor and vice president of the local AFL assembly, a life-long loafer and criminal with a record of two convictions for sex offenses against children, was sentenced to prison last year for hiring two men to dynamite a job on which CIO men were employed. One of the dynamiters was killed. None of the union officials of the AFL assisted in the prosecution of Jones.

In New York last winter Green gave a dinner for a noted English Laborite from which Dubinsky walked out because who should turn up, among Green's guests, chatting with the guest of honor and Frances Perkins but Joe Fay? Criticism of the Corliss in the union racket is, of course, a work of disunity serving the interests of Hitler and the Japs, so no part of the foregoing is stated in a critical spirit. It is just routine factuality and by no means the half of it, either.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL

WEAPONS OF FREEDOM I saw, at the Chrysler Tank Arsenal, the first of the new medium type tanks produced in this country. This was less than a year ago.

Today thousands of new medium tanks are coming off the lines. The design is not the same as the one of less than a year ago.

It has more fire power. Its 75-millimeter gun is in a turret and can be revolved to fire in any direction. The old one could fire only straight ahead.

In the Battle of Libya the "General Grant" type tank was the one which the Germans eagerly took and put to work. You may bet on it that engineers right now are working out duplicate designs of the "General Grant" for production, if possible, in Germany.

By that time we may have tougher armor plate, more fire power and new technical designs which make the "General Grant" even better.

Weapons don't stand still. In this war, the greatest war of specialization, the changes in weapons, tanks and planes are almost continual.

American genius has learned how to begin the changes while the machines, guns or tanks still are on the assembly line. One plane far back up the line is marked with a flag. It will be the last of that type. Re-tooling has started for parts which will improve it. Before they are on more than a few thousand planes a new flag has gone on the line.

The new medium tank is worth a few notes:

IN THE BEGINNING In the beginning it weighed about 18 tons. It had a 75 millimeter gun which protruded at the right side. It could be raised and lowered but could not be turned to either side. It had a number of 30-caliber guns.

Changes were made in armor and the weight went up to 23 tons and there were more 50-caliber guns.

The tanks which fought in Libya with such marked success, outdoing the German medium tanks, weigh 28 tons.

It didn't smother the Germans' 88-millimeter field gun attack, but that was something for other field guns.

It out-ranged the Germans' 22-ton medium tank and also showed greater fire power. Its 75-millimeter gun was better than the tank gun carried by the Germans. This at first was reported to be an 88-millimeter gun but this is disputed by our own intelligence.

It was reported by the English general in command that it was poor tactics, not poor tanks, which caused the defeat in Libya. The English were ambushed.

Now, the important thing about this tank is that we no longer are making it. Rather, we will stop making it this month.

Our new medium tank is so greatly improved it is out in front of anything the M-3, or "General Grant," could do. It is in production and is on the way, or perhaps has arrived, in the Middle East.

When I think back to that first medium tank, less than a year ago at the Chrysler Tank Arsenal, and to the situation today, it is encouraging.

THE FLYING WEAPONS It rather reliably is reported that of those slim, fast (350 miles per hour) medium bombers built by Glen Martin, at Midway Island, the Japanese fleet engaged in that battle would have been wiped out.

The Japanese knew of the B-26 as a fast, high altitude bomber which their planes couldn't catch.

It was this plane, equipped with highly secret devices for releasing torpedoes, which came roaring out of the clouds to attack the fleet. Faster than any other low-altitude bomber, and doing a job not believed possible for so fast a ship, the bombers were the ones which sank the two or three aircraft carriers and did severe damage to other ships.

Had there been 100 of them there, or even 90, the entire Japanese fleet would have been wiped out.

WAR OF TRANSPORT Our production is coming along now what is meant by a global war and by these phrases which the experts use, such as "interior and exterior lines."

They mean only that we are fighting from those lines far distant from the theaters of war while our enemies are fighting from the shorter ones. They travel 1,000 miles to every 10,000 which the Allies must travel.

No matter how good our tanks, they and trained crews must be transported long distances. Not many tanks will go on a ship.

No matter how good our fighter planes, they must be shipped on ships, as we have lost too many bases to fly them the long distances between us and the vital bases.

Our weapons are good. And getting better—as they must.

Our men are good fighters. Our big job is getting men and weapons to the war.

We are gradually, I think and hope, refusing to listen to those whose hatred of the President makes them critics and defeatists.

We are getting angry about the bund and the saboteurs. We've learned, too, that all saboteurs do not land in rubber boots.

Just an Effort
To Prove I'm Still Alive.

What's the cure for just cussed laziness? Work, I have often been told. But when a fellow is just cussed lazy, work is exactly what he doesn't want, even to think about.

This is being typed late on a Thursday afternoon. At home it could have been done this morning or last night. But it wasn't. I'm sorry. I do feel lazy.

I've sort of been combining a vacation with sick leave... something and just layin' around the house all by myself, except for the dog, and enjoyin' life. Somewhat.

Along about 6 o'clock this morning I woke up, full of pep and high purposes and remarked to myself that I'd get right up, brew a pot of coffee and do a couple of columns, for Saturday and Sunday. So then I'd be free to go traveling about from the Great Smokies to the Gulf.

And here it is, 7 p. m., and not a lick struck. It wasn't because I couldn't think up an idea for a column, because that has never bothered a columnist. If he had to have an idea a day he'd be off the pay roll in no time. The great idea is to do a column without an idea, which I shall now proceed to do. If this damn dog will get out of my lap. The sound of a typewriter lures him. I think he has journalistic instincts. Which reminds me that a woman with a nice voice called up the other evening and suggested I write more about important matters and less about my dog. I promised her I'd make a study of the situation in China and go into that. But he seems to be the only one who wants my view on international affairs. I don't get much fan mail, but most of it has a postscript asking about Ding, my dachshund, who is doing quite well, thank you, and if you don't get down off my lap and out in the yard I'll cut your tail off just behind your ears, as I've been threatening since you were born.

Politics.
By reading the papers I see that there's quite a lot of politics going on in Georgia.

I can't get all hot and bothered about Ernest Willie's opposition to Dick Russell—or Tom Linder's, if he is in the race, which seems somewhat problematic. But nobody can help being interested in the race between Gene Talmadge and Ellis Arnall. Friends, that's goin' to be some'n. I'm glad Columbus Roberts decided to stay out and let it be a two-horse race. Both off with the Fourth of July bugle and no handicaps.

Georgia has had so many governors in my time that I don't bother about 'em any more. We've had some big, hardheaded, sound businessmen v.l. did nothing. And we've had a few riproaring rabble-rousers who did a lot—mostly bad. So what?

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON
ADAM AND EVE.

Sunday's lesson, the third chapter of Genesis, is the story of Adam and Eve—their temptation and sin. The golden rule is: "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." Ezekiel 18:4.

The creation of man, as we learned from last Sunday's lesson, was the crowning act of God's creative program. Man was created in the image of God. Among the gifts bestowed upon man was the right of choice between good and evil. He was created in a state of innocence, but God told him that he might lose this state of innocence if he disobeyed Him. This Adam and Eve did, listening to Satan's lies, and choosing to obey him rather than God. In that moment, sin entered their hearts, and because of Adam and Eve's original sin of disobedience, the human race automatically became depraved.

All of which calls for a study of sin—what it is, and what it does to the human heart. "Sin is lack of conformity to the moral law of God, either in act, disposition or state," said the late Dr. B. H. Carroll. Dr. Augustus H. Strong says of sin: "While sin as a state is unlikeliness to God, as a principle is opposition to God, as an act is transgression of God's laws, the essence of it always and everywhere is selfishness."

Another strong definition of sin is given by Dr. Harris: "Sin is essentially egoism or selfishness, putting self in God's place. It has four principal characteristics of manifestations—self-sufficiency instead of faith, self-will instead of submission, self-seeking instead of benevolence, and self-righteousness instead of humility and reverence."

God created Adam for the purpose of having dominion over everything in the world, and so informed him. There was nothing that heart could wish which God did not provide for Adam and Eve. Man could not have been free if he had been deprived of the choice of doing wrong. God told Adam why He had made him free, thus leaving Adam without any excuse for his disobedience.

Sin must be suffered for. Every reasonable consideration leads to that inevitable conclusion. Adam and Eve immediately admitted this point when they hid themselves from God. "I heard Thy voice in the Garden, and I was afraid," said Adam. Then followed the condemnation.

But in the very spot where God condemned sin, He foretold the way of escape—"The seed of the woman shall bruise the serpent's head." Here we have the first prophecy of the atoning Redeemer. Only the Sinless One can save sinners. "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved." Thus this lesson brings to our attention once again the story of God's great love. "God commendeth His love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us."

Learn-To-Earn Students Get Money, Credits

19 Marietta Pupils Take 'Occupation' Classwork-Job Course.

MARIETTA, Ga., July 10.—(P)—Nineteen students taking a learn-to-earn course at the Marietta High school, pocketed a total of $2,700 between them during the last school term, plus acquiring two credit units toward graduation each.

Under the diversified occupations course, as the curriculum is formally known, students co-ordinate class work with jobs on which they work approximately 20 hours weekly.

An analysis sheet is kept on each student for each day's work. Frequently the employer outlines the plan of work for the day with the assistance of the high school co-ordinator, E. D. Covington. Points are kept on the students' achievement by both the employer and Covington.

At regular grading periods, the students are rated on personality, ability, and other traits.

The 19 students, boys and girls, worked in more than a dozen business establishments. Some firms hired more than one student. The jobs on which the students were employed included automobile mechanics, dry cleaning, stenographic work, grocery store operation, insurance, selling shoes, and sign lettering.

The course has been in operation at the high school here two years, and students taking it are allowed two credits toward graduation. A related study room at the school is equipped with a 50-volume trade library, trade magazines, typewriter, legal files, card files, trade manuals, manufacturer's literature and similar material.

Georgia Group In Congress To View Gas Boost

No Justification for Increase in Cost, Vinson Wires Governor.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. WASHINGTON, July 10.—Vigorous protesting the increase in Georgia gasoline costs, the Georgia delegation in congress today scheduled a meeting for 10 o'clock tomorrow morning here to "give full consideration" to Governor Talmadge's request for a complete congressional investigation of the price boost.

Congressman Vinson, chairman of the Georgia delegation, who issued the conference call, wired Talmadge "there can be no justification for the price increase in Georgia" especially in view of the fact that pipelines deliver gas in the state. The only ones benefited by this increase of 2 1/2 cents (per gallon) are the oil companies and the owners of the pipelines. This is a serious situation and I know every member of the delegation will do his utmost to help correct it."

Other Georgia congressmen criticized the increase in price and the rationing in Georgia. Senator Russell has condemned the increase as an unfair tax against the motorists in one section of the country and promised help in eliminating it. Senator George was out of the city and not available today.

Oil Group Protests Boost in Gas Costs

A resolution protesting the increases in gasoline prices in Georgia has been adopted by the board of directors of the Georgia Association of Petroleum Retailers.

The directors issued a statement declaring that gas has been raised 2 1/2 cents per gallon in Georgia and called the hike "one of the largest raises in prices ever known." They pointed out the increase goes to a pool to offset additional freight, rate costs, but added that Georgia is served by pipe lines, and that gas pumped into Georgia through these lines is being sold more cheaply in Alabama.

The board also charged the big oil companies with selling gas cheaper in the north than in Georgia. The retailers pointed out they have had a 50 per cent curtailment in the amount of gasoline they have to sell, and that they make no more commission on the increased price than formerly. Many dealers have been forced out of business, they said.

The directors recommended that, since the government has rationed gas only on the eastern seaboard, the increased price should be made national and the increase lowered to 2 1/2 cents per gallon. Jimmy Robinson is president of the association.

Sands Plantation Is Sold in Hancock

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. SPARTA, Ga., July 10.—Announcement was made today of the sale of the large Sands plantation in Hancock county, near Mayfield, by W. A. Sands, of Columbus, Ohio, representing his sons and daughters, to P. S. Knox Sr. and W. A. Knox, representing Knox Brothers, of Thomson, Ga.

The new owners of this large farm, containing 850 acres, purchased the growing crops, the livestock and farm machinery, paying $45,000 for the entire layout, it was stated. Included in the deal was a herd of Hereford cattle and Knox Brothers expect to add more livestock and establish an extensive stock farm on the place. It has excellent pastures and much running water.

Sands did not sell his home here, the former W. H. Burwell residence, but will keep it for his winter home. He has other interests in Ohio which took too much of his time to supervise the local farm and for that reason he decided to sell.

The new owners took possession this week.

Lumber 'Freeze' Order Extended

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(P)—The War Production Board today extended its lumber "freeze" order for a month, pending development "of a system of distribution" based on need of lumber for war purposes.

Officials declined to say what form of distribution would be adopted, emphasizing that plans had not been worked out.

At the same time, WPB revised the freeze order, permitting sale and delivery of lumber for repair and maintenance of railway cars and allowing small sawmills to resume retail sales.

Group To Pass On Cobb Claim In 1st District

Committee To Rule If Savannah Is Qualified In Congress Race.

SWAINSBORO, Ga., July 10.—(P)—John R. Powell, chairman of the First District Democratic Executive Committee, said today a special meeting of the committee would convene here tomorrow at 11 a. m. to hear claims of Albert L. Cobb to candidacy for congress.

Powell said the committee secretary, A. L. Mosely, rejected Cobb's entry when a check, made to Cobb by a third party and indorsed by him, was returned marked "insufficient funds." The check was part of Cobb's $500 entry fee. Powell said he concurred in Mosely's decision, but agreed to call the full committee to hear Cobb's appeal.

Meanwhile, said the chairman, the names of Representative Hugh Peterson, incumbent congressman, and Clarence D. Pedersen, Savannah insurance executive, have been certified as candidates in the September 9 Democratic primary.

Cobb said he had refused return of his entry and qualifying fee, and insisted the questioned check had been covered at all times.

"Both the maker of the check and the bank executives tell me that the check was covered," Cobb said. "I never was given opportunity to protect my indorsement. As soon as I and my friends knew about this, I offered cash, and continuously offered cash for this amount, and it was refused."

Cobb said he understood no candidates would be certified for the primary ballot until after his appeal was heard.

PRIVATE BUCK By Clyde Lewis

The Army and Navy in Georgia

Cotton from the fields of Dixie is teaming with sisal to "pinch hit" for Manila in the manufacture of rope for the Army, it was revealed today with the announcement from the office of the Fourth Corps Area Quartermaster that 15,557,870 pounds, 311 carloads, of rope from these fibers are being purchased for the American fighting forces.

Sisal rope is the most acceptable substitute for Manila rope, it is pointed out. Its tensile strength is about 80 per cent that of Manila and it is used for test rope, halter ties, pack and picket lines.

With Java cut off, Africa and Mexico are the two sources for sisal fiber. The Mexican fiber, known as henequen, is considered a good substitute but it has a lower tensile strength than sisal, which is imported from the north central region of Africa.

Cotton fiber rope is replacing Manila for tentage purposes and for use in connection with tarpaulins. The cotton fiber, however, is only about 50 per cent as strong as Manila.

BENNING SERVICE CLUB GETS SIRUP SHIPMENT.

Seventeen cartons of sirup have arrived at Fort Benning, Ga., from the Cleveland, Ohio, address to "The Enlisted Men's Service Club, Fort Benning."

"No one knows anything about the sirup except that it is here and all paid for. Miss Ivy Randall, senior hostess at the shipment, Club, is 'stuck' with the shipment. She has a few days longer, but if no results are obtained, there is a good chance the sugar shortage won't make much difference at Service Club for a few days."

AUGUSTA, Ga., July 10.—Miss Ruth Jones, daughter of Mrs. Harry Hill Jones, became the bride of Lieutenant Alexander Windsor, of Atlanta and Augusta at a ceremony solemnized this evening at 9 o'clock at the Trinity-on-the-Hill Methodist church, in Augusta, Ga.

Rev. W. M. Barnett officiated, and William Toole, organist, presented music. The ceremony was performed in a setting of white gladioli and asters.

Ewing Miles, of Atlanta, cousin of the groom, was best man, and ushers were Douglas Cone, of Savannah; Clifford Sheffield, of Memphis, Tenn.; George Valentine, of Athens, and David McCleary, of Atlanta.

Mrs. William A. Johns was matron of honor, wearing turquoise marquisette and carrying daisies. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Robert Dienst and Misses Mary Hull, Louise Battey and Elizabeth Lee. They were gowned in voluminous models fashioned like that of the matron of honor, and their bouquets were of daisies.

William Benton Jones gave his sister in marriage. The lovely bride wore a bouffant wedding gown of ivory marquisette over taffeta, the bodice and sleeves of which were encrusted with pearls. Her veil of ivory illusion fell from a pearl-embroidered cap of rose point lace, and extended to the end of her dress train. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and white roses.

Miss Bohn and Lieut Watkins Wed at Tyndall Field Chapel

Of interest is the announcement by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Maxwell Bohn, of the marriage of their daughter, Miss Edith Georgia Bohn, to Lieutenant Howard Denman Watkins Jr., which took place recently at the Little White Chapel at Tyndall Field, Panama City, Fla.

The post chaplain officiated at the double ring ceremony, the groom's ring having been made from the wedding ring of the bride's maternal grandmother, Mrs. George J. Sharkey, who recently celebrated her golden wedding anniversary.

Miss Janet Mann, of Blakely, and Tyndall Field, was the maid of honor and only attendant. She wore a shaded green taffeta gown with a close-fitting bodice and bouffant skirt. She carried a bouquet of tulle roses and Shasta daisies.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, Ralph M. Bohn, was met at the altar by the bridegroom and his best man, Lieutenant Peter E. Weis. She wore a gown of mousseline de soie with bouquets of inlaid velvet and a three-tiered veil, a cap of lace framing her hair. Her only ornament was a diamond and platinum brooch, a gift of her parents. Her flowers were white orchids with purple throats showered with Stephanotis.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Bohn were hosts at a small reception at the Dixie-Sherman hotel, in Panama City, Fla. The bridal couple left for a wedding trip and will reside in Panama City at 310 MacArthur Boulevard.

Mrs. Bohn, the mother of the bride, is the former Miss Lucille Sharkey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Sharkey, of Evanston, Ill., and Atlanta. Her paternal grandparents were the late Mr. and Mrs. John J. Bohn, of Chicago, Ill.

Mrs. Watkins was graduated from the University of Wisconsin and was a member of the University Hunt Club and Wisconsin

The Real Cafe Entertainer Has a Technique All His Own

By Damon Runyon.

LOS ANGELES, July 10.—In considering cafe entertainers of the type of the late Les Copeland it must be remembered that this has always been a field apart in the world of entertainment, with a technique all its own.

Many a great cafe entertainer whose art and personality can jam a comparatively small room with customers nightly and produce a weekly salary into four figures, is lost on the stage. Similarly, many high-priced performers of the stage do not know the right time when they attempt a cafe appearance, and merely bore their audiences.

This has been demonstrated again and again. An experienced cafe entertainer who can hold an unruly "saloon" crowd in the palm of his hand throughout a long session on the floor may seem confused and futile up there on the rostrum before a theater gathering. He may employ every word and gesture with which he "kills" the cafe mob and never raise a ripple from the cushioned seats.

A theater star of purest ray serene whose every move enthralled in the theater and whose knowledge and practice of the dramatic art may be perfection plus, can speedily assume the aspect of a complete dope on a cafe floor and cause the crowd to marvel at his ineptness, if not to give him the good old razz.

There are some performers who are swell in both places, but many are not.

The screen, of course, is a specialized department of public entertainment that does not always reflect the true talent of performers because it requires certain attributes that are unnecessary on the stage or in a cafe.

Some of the stage and cafe artists have been highly successful in pictures but others of equal ability have failed for reasons that do not diminish their popularity in their own field.

The present king of the cafe entertainers in the comedy line is undoubtedly Joe E. Lewis, who says the "E" stands for "Everglades." He plays cafe audiences everywhere. His name is the synonym for good business. He gets a big salary, but as a screen performer, Joe is something less than marvelous because the film costs him his personality. However, Joe is without illusion on the point.

"There was so much of me left on the cutting room floor," he says of a recent picture, "that I am getting fan mail from mice."

Lewis and Jack White, another great cafe comedian, were among my favorites of the present generation of laugh-makers. I go back with White further than either of us care to think about, but the fact that he retains top standing in his field after all these years is an indication of his talent.

In talking of cafe comics, I am drifting far from Les Copeland's particular field, as he was a piano player and singer, but I have always been a set-up for the funny fellows. I used to think the greatest of them all was Sidney Gibson, who was around Chicago. The last time I saw him, he was with Olson and Johnson in a New York show.

The Ritz brothers were terrific cafe comics in their days, though the champion combination of cafe funny guys of my time was that huffle-scuffle trio, Durante, Clayton and Jackson. Then there was a single-handed operator who may have been forgotten by many of those who used to enjoy his work, but who in my humble opinion was one of the funniest that ever lived, his name was Jack Rose.

I think I should include another name—that of Jackie Osterman, who died at a comparatively early age. He was the fastest man on his feet, as the saying is, bar Milton Berle, that I ever heard. I do not mean actual speed as of late, but facility in thought and repartee at which Berle is the present master.

Columbia Will Film Story Of Girl Who Goes to Washington

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, July 10.—(INS) If I told you that Columbia was planning a picture, "Winnie Went to Washington," about a feminine "Mr. Smith" (who went to Washington, too, you remember) who would you guess the star to be? It sounds tailor-made for Jean Arthur—but hold everything. Rosalind Russell is also in the running for the top spot in one of the most amusing stories I've heard in a long time.

"Winnie" is a gal who goes to Washington looking for adventure. When it fails to materialize she starts keeping a diary filled with fictitious romances with Washington biggies, and when the diary is sold—wow! Sam Bischof will produce "Winnie," an original by Aubrey Wisberg.

Orders are orders, especially when they come from the Navy, so instead of Ty Power going into naval training school the first of August he will remain in Hollywood long enough to make "Crash Dive." I suspect Ty is disappointed for he had been eager to get into action. But there is no doubt that he will be doing something for his country when he goes to New London, Conn., to star in a story of the United States Submarine school. Colonel Darryl F. Zanuck has assigned Archie Mayo to the direction and Archie, along with the cast, expects to be on the grounds of the submarine school August 10.

Mildred Cram got her $100,000 without any trouble for "Mary Smith, U. S. A." And she had plenty of takers. M.-G.-M. grabbed off the story for Lana Turner and it will be Arthur Hornblow's first M.-G.-M. picture. The story is one in which a small town girl kills an important politician because she feels he isn't right for a big government job. And she goes to prison without betraying her secret. That's her contribution to the U. S. A.

Carol Bruce and Universal come to a final and complete parting of the ways July 11. It is no secret that Carol hasn't been happy about her movie career. She has a swell voice and on the stage or in a night club she registers magnetism plus. But on the screen something is lost in the Bruce personality. Carol leaves the first of the week for New York, where she has her pick of two shows, "Jennie Gets Her Gun," the Cole Porter musical, and "Count Me In."

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: The last picture Helen Parrish made was "They All Kissed the Bride" and she played the bride. Tomorrow Helen becomes a bride in real life when she marries Charles Lang. Her movie bridegroom, Roger Clark, is so eager that Lang does a good job that he has been instructing him all week on just what to do and how to act when he marches down the aisle. So if Helen's marriage does not go off in great style it won't be the fault of her motion picture bridegroom.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Preston Sturges fell and broke his finger, but that didn't keep him from going right on with his directorial job; Adrian is doing a wardrobe for Shirley Temple which certainly shows she is growing up—and fast; John Steinbeck has tied himself to El Rancho Vegas to work on a new novel; the Cedric Gibbons-Pat Dane romance is over, according to Pat when I saw her last; Martha Matur has turned down a movie job because it is serious about her secretarial course, which is taking much of her time these days; Jack Briggs, who once had eyes only for Bonita Granville, stepping out with Ann Shirley. That's all today. See you tomorrow! But Mrs. Earl W. Beam, Waterloo, Iowa, says: "For tomorrow buy today, give our children the American way."

MY DAY: School Lunches And the War

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

HYDE PARK, Thursday.—Yesterday morning, after the girls had had their horseback ride, all of us went down to Poughkeepsie together. Groceries had to be bought, and everyone had some absolutely necessary thing that they had to acquire. I had a meeting with the school lunch committee, set up under the auspices of the Farm Bureau and with the help of the economics extension agent. I was left at the post office and spent a most interesting hour. I found my little girls examining the murals in the office when I came out to look for the car. These murals are really very interesting and I often wonder if people driving through Poughkeepsie stop to look at them. In nearly all our post office murals there are portraits of historic people which add enormously to the interest of the pictures.

In the discussion of our county school lunch program, several points came for consideration. First, no one knows what surplus commodities, if any, will be available next year and many of these programs have been run on surplus commodities.

Secondly, the Parent-Teacher Association, which nationally voted to make the school lunch program their main interest this coming year, has in some smaller localities in the county decided to disband for the year, because of the difficulty of getting about without gas. I hope these groups can be induced to revive rapidly, for I think this is a time when the parent-teacher groups should be more active than they have been in the past. There is more to be done and there must be ways found to do it.

Lastly, I was told that it would be extremely difficult to make people believe that school lunches had anything to do with war work. This last point is the main reason why I wanted to write about this meeting. I am quite sure that if some people feel this way here, there are many, many others who feel the same way in other places. It becomes not a local feeling, but a national feeling which may have a very serious effect on work which needs to be done and which is important to the boys who are actually fighting.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

By Edythe Thomas Wallace.

Mother: "You're mistaken, Grandmother. Bill isn't a problem. He's just a boy who wants something to do. How about making some lemonade for us, Bill. Do you think you can?"

Grandma: "Bill's certainly a problem child if ever there was one!"

Mother: "I agree with you. He can think of more bad things to do in one day than anyone I know."

A child who gets the notion he is a "problem" will very likely choose to continue being that interesting person.

Having Fun In Your Own Back Yard

By Ida Jean Kain.

This summer the back yard will be the great American playground. It is staging as big a comeback as vaudeville. As soon as we quit gadding about in our gas buggies long enough to learn about the pleasures of playing at home, the stores reported a 60 per cent jump in the sale of games and gadgets for the domesticated youth of outdoors.

It may be the influence of Dobbin's revival, but horseshoes... which still don't cost enough to bother about—are almost as popular today as they were in the gay nineties. For pitching purposes, you need a couple of stumps set about 40 feet apart and a set of horseshoes. Who knows, you may be the lady horseshoe pitching champion of your neighborhood.

From what we see in the movies, darts are standard equipment for every English tavern. But it's game we like to take outdoors, especially in the good old summertime.

Badminton is rapidly becoming one of our most popular games and it's a fine one for the back yard. It will put your entire family in the pink of condition and will give you a streamlined figure. Your badminton net can be used for other games—like volleyball. Or, you might like deck tennis. All you would have to buy would be the set of rope rings.

Another not-too-strenuous set game is paddle tennis. This is a gymnasium standby among our representatives in Washington and it is sure to make a hit with the head of your house.

If you are looking for a hilarious game with plenty of action, try pole tennis. For this you need a sturdy pole about 10 feet long. To the top of the pole attach a light rope with a ball on the end and plant the pole firmly in the ground. The game is to swat away at the ball with a racquet and try to wrap the rope around the pole. Your opponent makes this hard for you. Better take off your glasses for this game.

There's always croquet. Maybe you have forgotten how much enjoyment you can get out of a congenial game. Your croquet lawn should measure 71 feet by 28 feet.

To keep your golf up to par in spite of the difficulties of the summer, you might like one of the numerous golf practice gadgets and games. These come in all prices and are as different as the enthusiasts who devised them. Drop into your sports equipment shop and look them over.

With the weather so fine, why not move the table tennis table outside? And take the medicine ball out in the open—you might as well have sociability along with your exercise and you'll find you have more partners than you need.

Grin and Bear It

"Oh, I don't mind not having a vacation this summer—having a foreman show you how to operate a drill press is as much fun as having a lifeguard teach you to swim!"

By Dr. William Brady.

In order to appease the insistent demand for useless information and ease my conscience a bit, I'll give here all of it I can gather in reference to vitamin potencies of units for measuring vitamin strength.

A gram is the metric unit of weight—the weight of a cubic centimeter of water at a temperature of 4 degrees Centigrade (about 39 degrees Fahrenheit, a few degrees above freezing). A milligram (mg.) is one-thousandth of a gram. A microgram is one-thousandth of a milligram. Sometimes, to make it harder, micrograms are called "gamma." Now a gram is approximately equal to 15 1/2 grains. A milligram is approximately equal to 1-65th of a grain. A microgram is approximately 1-680,000th of a gram, one millionth of a gram. Please don't blame me for this. You asked for it. I wouldn't know—I'm just copying the answers out of the book.

One international unit is the same as one U. S. P. unit—or was at 4 o'clock last week. It is not at all clear why the U. S. P. is horned into the argument at all.

One international unit of B1 (thiamin) is approximately equivalent to four Sherman units, but don't bank on this, for the boys in the laboratory are still arguing about it.

One international unit of vitamin A is now considered to be 0.6 microgram, or slightly more than one-half of one-millionth of a gram, or the better half of a gamma.

And it is astonishing how many laymen want to know about gammas and things. They complain almost daily because Webster ducked gammas in his last edition. Huh, that isn't the half of it.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Rheumatic Fever. When I was 17 I had a severe attack of rheumatic fever. I got over it all right and have enjoyed fine health ever since. I am now

21, engaged. My fiancée's friends tell her I am not likely to live more than 10 years after such an attack of rheumatic fever, as my heart must be damaged.

(F. M. B.)

Answer—In fairness to your fiancée and to yourself you should have a medical examination now, and be guided by the opinion and advice of your physician concerning fitness and your expectation of life. The attack of rheumatic fever would not necessarily leave any heart damage at all.

Lemon Juice.

What benefits are there in lemon juice? I was told it is very good. Is this so? Have been taking egg and lemon juice as an egg nog. Is this good? What vitamins does lemon juice contain?

(Mrs. A. C.)

Answer—Lemon or lemon juice is good if you like it. Even mixed with egg it is good if you like it. Lemon juice contains vitamin C, as does tomato juice and other fresh fruits or their juices. It is silly to ascribe any extraordinary remedial values to lemon juice other than its values, due to vitamin C, in preventing or curing scurvy, and of course its value, for orange, grapefruit, lime and other acid fruits, in preventing "acidosis" or maintaining alkalinity of blood and tissues and urine, or rather preventing excessive acidity of urine.

Mineral Oil Versus Vitamins. Taking mineral oil for constipation. As I am very nervous have been taking vitamin B1 tablets too. Saw where you said mineral oil interferes with assimilation of vitamins. (Miss W. M.)

Answer—Mineral oil tends to interfere with assimilation of vitamins, minerals and other nutrients essential for good functional health. Send 10 cents and stamped envelope bearing your address, for booklet "The Constipation Habit and Colon Hygiene." Your notion that the synthetic B1 is good for nervousness is fanciful.

Red Sox May Upset Yankees' Apple Cart

Boston Tougher Than Leaders, Luke Sewell Thinks; Grove Was Faster Than Feller, He Believes.

NEW YORK, July 10.—(AP)—Approaching the matter cautiously, as a man would who had just been kicked by a mule and didn't want to offend either hoof unnecessarily, Manager, Luke Sewell, of the St. Louis Browns expressed the opinion today that Boston's Red Sox have a "great" chance to beat out the Yankees in the American League.

"You can't laugh off the fact that Joe Cronin's club has won 23 of its last 30 games," said Sewell, who has done an exceptional job in keeping the crippled Browns as high as fifth place this late in the race. "The Sox have looked like a flag winner against us. They've got pitching this year to go with that hitting."

"On the other hand," he continued, "the Yankees never have impressed us this year. They've beaten us, I'll admit, but in three of four games they had to have all the breaks to do it."

TWO PROBLEMS.
"They've got a problem at third base and another at first. The only thing holding them up is that great second base combination of Gordon and Rizzuto. Their hitting is the weakest they've had in years. Russo is out with a bad arm and Ruffing and Gomez can't do it any more. That just leaves Spud Chandler and Bonham to try to pitch them to a pennant—and Bonham can be hit."

Having left the Yankees in a precarious spot, indeed, Luke skipped lightly into the subject of speed pitching. Specifically, he said he believed that Lefty Grove in his heyday with the Athletics was faster "from hand to glove" than Bobby Feller was before he joined the Navy. Luke spent years trying to get Grove to throw a ball like a mule, but with only medium success. "Feller's fast one, though, had more life to it, and of course he had a wonderful curve where Lefty had none until after he began to lose his speed."

OPTICAL ILLUSION.
"Grove was so fast when he really cut loose with that overhand throw of his that the ball presented an optical illusion to the batter. At least it did to me. For years I thought it was breaking out a little to me, a right-hander, and I wondered why I kept hitting it on the handle. Later, when I had an opportunity to catch him in an exhibition, I discovered that the thing actually was breaking in on a right-hand batter, the opposite of what a fast ball should do."

"I guess the greatest pitching exhibition I ever saw was the day he struck out five Cleveland batters in succession on 16 pitches. The only reason he got a foul was that one man got a foul. They were a good bunch of hitters, too."

GOLDEN TERROR.
The Golden Terror, a mammoth, masked 310-pound figure, was the star in a surprising, spectacular drama which no script writer in Hollywood ever could begin to equal. At times there was not a person in the crowd, including the ticket-takers and ticket sellers, who left their jobs, who was not on his feet howling and screaming for the Golden Terror's scalp, or whatever lies beneath his mask.

Outweighing Emil Dusek by 90 pounds, the Terror nevertheless helped him do the job. When the Terror was in distress, the manager would reach into the ring and pull his pal outside. Such goings-on caused the Terror, nevertheless, to come charging to the ringside to maul the Terror's manager. The Terror went to his manager's aid and when Wrestler Joe Cox, who was refereeing, prior to meeting the Terror, intervened, the elder Dusek hit Cox a beauty on the button. Not to be outdone, Cox held Emil Dusek while the Terror mauling him in the face.

When some form of order was restored the masked giant won the match, doing it with rough stuff in straight falls, but at the finish Emil was back in there to do Brother Emil and while the younger brother hit Referee Joe from behind, Emil nailed him on the chin a couple of times.

Thus the scene was set for the final match, featuring Emil Dusek and Cox. Emil was out to avenge the treatment accorded his kido brother, but Dynamite Joe proved he still is a tough man in any league by turning back the slashing, driving Dusek in a blistering three-fall battle.

In the opening round, Dave Roche tossed Hans Schuler with a clever leg lock in 11 minutes.

ITALIAN BOXER JOINS Uncle Sam's Army.
NEW YORK, July 10.—(AP)—Terry Amico, a boxer who was born in Italy and lives in Chinatown, will have proof that he's a real American when he enters the Army Monday.

Technically an enemy alien because of his Italian birth, Terry will have with him a letter from his local draft board which says: "Rosario Frank Amico has the distinction of being the first alien, originally classified as 4-C, to volunteer for induction. He has proven that he is worthy of every consideration. It is a pleasure to recommend him."

Today Deadline For Getting New Gasoline Cards

July 24 Is Set Aside for Late Registrants, Merritt Says.

Motorists who do not obtain their basic gasoline ration books at schools throughout the rationed zone this week will have to wait until July 24, two days after the new rationing program starts, to get them, the OPA warned yesterday.

"Frank H. Merritt, regional representative of OPA's fuel rationing section, said that after the three-day regular registration period ends today local war boards will start processing applications for truck and commercial gas rations as well as private car supplements."

"The basic registration is going along with apparent smoothness throughout the southern ration states," Merritt declared.

"The only really complicated process now under way is in filling out applications for fleet and commercial allotments, but in many cities we have set up special panels to advise operators on the proper procedure."

Rites for C. H. Browne Are Held at Brunswick
Special to THE CONSTITUTION. BRUNSWICK, Ga., July 10.—Funeral services for Charles Henry Browne, 27, only child of Mr. and Mrs. Jeff D. Browne, of Brunswick, who died in a Miami Beach hospital Monday, were held Thursday at the First Methodist church, this city, with full military honors. Interment was in Palmetto cemetery here.

Young Browne was a candidate at the Officers' Training School in the Florida city and formerly was in military training at a Texas camp. Information from Miami Beach to his parents here stated that his son was overcome with heat Monday afternoon and died about three hours after entering a hospital.

Browne was a graduate of Glynn Academy, where he was a star player on the school's Red Terror football team. After his graduation he later attended Middle Georgia College at Cochran, and South Georgia Teachers' College at Statesboro, and was, prior to entering military service, coach at Wrightsville High school, signing that position last June to enter the Army.

NEW YORK, July 10.—(AP)—Stock Market bulls retired in good order today in the face of mild profit-taking pressure inspired by the lengthy upswing.

Hesitancy prevailed at the start and, at the worst, declines ran to a point or so. While there were scattered recoveries in the final hour, with steels stiffening, the minus ranks were well populated at the close.

The back-down was accomplished on just about half the volume of the preceding rallying period and was attributed mainly to the belief a technical correction was due in view of the recent broad comeback. There was the usual lightning of commitments as a week-end precaution.

The Russian war news was a trifle pessimistic although, as in recent sessions, it was questionable just how much effect this had on trends. Inflation psychology remained as a moderately sustaining factor.

Bonds were irregular and major commodities lower. At Chicago wheat was off 1-2 to 7-8 of a cent a bushel, corn down 5-8 to 7-8 and hogs steady to strong. Cotton lost 6 cents to $10.5 a bale.

In the curb Aluminum of America closed 3 1-2 points on meager dealings. Lesser advances here were registered for Novadel-Agenc, Quaker Oats, Gulf Oil and United Light. Backward were American Gas, Humble Oil, Brewster Aero, Phoenix Securities and Singer.
